PRICE FIVE CENTS

BOND NOT REQUIRED OF McCARN

Arraignment in Circuit Court to Answer to Indictment
Brings Arguments

PHALANX OF LAWYERS
FOR U. S. ATTORNEY

Official Given Until Monday
Morning to Plead to Assault
With Weapon Charge

United States District Attorney Jeff McCarn, held on an indictment charging assault with a deadly weapon upon Claudius McBride, the Hilo attorney, was released on his own recognizance by Judge Robinson of the circuit court before whom he appeared for arraignment this morning. Mr. McCarn was accompanied by a phalanx of attorneys, A. S. Humphreys, J. Lightfoot, J. Alfred Magoon, Wm. S. Edings and C. W. Ashford, all of whom were entered as attorneys of record for the defendant. Deputy City and County Attorney A. M. Brown represented the territory, and Attorney L. Andrews appeared in the interests of Mr. McBride.

After the reading of the indictment a hot argument followed on the question of a bond. Magoon asserting it was the duty of the court, in view of the defendant's position in the territory, to release him on his own recognizance. While Brown agreed to waive the right to insist upon a bond being put up, Andrews took another view of the matter and declared that a fair and reasonable bond should be required, for the sake of precedent if for no other reason.

Attorney Magoon's main argument was that by requiring an undertaking from the district attorney, the latter would be humiliated and handicapped in performing his official duties.

"He is a co-ordinate part of this government," declared Magoon, "and it would be wrong to tie his hand by requiring a bond, and to embarrass him unnecessarily."

The court ruled, after a half hour's argument, that the defendant should be released on his own recognizance; and on the request of Humphreys he was given until 9:30 o'clock Monday morning to plead to the indictment.

A stenographic report of striking points in the hearing follows:

Humphreys: "I appear for the defendant in this matter and ask that Attorneys Lightfoot, Magoon, Edings and Ashford be entered on the record as attorneys associated with me in the defense. We waive the reading of the indictment."

Judge Robinson: "We will proceed in the regular way with the reading of the indictment."

Brown reads indictment.

Humphreys: "I ask that we be given until Monday in which to plead to this indictment."

Brown: "The prosecution is willing to waive bail in this case."

After Mr. Brown had made this statement an argument opened participated in by Attorneys Humphreys and Magoon on one side and L. Andrews on the other, which did not end for fifteen minutes, the court finally holding that bail should not be required in this case. The argument began in this way:

No Special Privileges.

Judge Robinson: "Every courtesy will be extended to any and every citizen of the United States, coming before this court, but special privileges will be accorded to no one."

Magoon: "I wish to say that whatever the district attorney does, Mr. McCarn stands before this court as the United States district attorney, a co-ordinate branch of his government. I say, Your Honor, you cannot disassociate Mr. McCarn from his capacity as such district attorney. He

STACKABLE BOWS TO MANDATE BUT FRIENDS PROTEST

Cable and Wireless Messages
Said to Be on Way to Washington Now

First news of the casting of the Collector Stackable was received by the Star-Bulletin early yesterday morning in an Associated Press dispatch by wireless and almost immediately the following telegram came from this paper's Washington correspondent:

"Stackable removed this afternoon by order of the president. Deputy Sharp has been designated to serve temporarily. Success or not indicated. The good of the service given as the reason for the removal."

"My removal from office of collector of customs for the district of Hawaii, at the instance of President Woodrow Wilson, is due solely to political reasons. My attitude regarding a refusal to tender my resignation as collector can now be easily defined," stated retiring Collector of Customs R. R. Stackable this morning. He was in the act of removing a mass of personal documents, correspondence and other effects from the big desk in his private office, preparatory to the induction of Raymer Sharp, former chief examiner, to serve in a temporary capacity as collector under cable instructions from Secretary McAdoo at Washington.

"In taking the stand that I have maintained for some weeks in declining to obey the mandate demanding a resignation from this office, I have done so at the urgent advice of some of the most influential business interests as well as my personal friends in this city," says Mr. Stackable.

The removal of the collector who has 14 years of continuous service to his credit, in his opinion, means the appointment of a mainlander to the position.

Friends of Mr. Stackable declared today that the removal of the collector may be blocked in the senate. It is pointed out that the officer cannot be legally retired except by the consent of the upper legislative body. Telegrams and wireless messages were sent speeding across the Pacific following the receipt of a brief and succinct order from Secretary McAdoo yesterday morning, curtly advising Stackable that he immediately turn over his office to Raymer Sharp, who would act temporarily. Sharp soon received a message notifying him of his temporary elevation in the local customs service.

It was said today that appeals as well as protests were yesterday addressed to members of the senate.

"I shall obey instructions contained in the cable from Washington," Stackable said this morning.

The collector rapidly assorted private and official papers, and looking over the accumulation, added, "I will not leave the city, however, but will stay around here and be in touch with any situation or contingency that may arise within the next few days."

Sharp yesterday and today received congratulations on his promotion, though temporary it may be. He has been identified with the service since the time that the islands were annexed. He is rated as one of the most efficient men in the local service and has been selected to take up his duties as examiner-in-chief at San Francisco during the installation of foreign exhibits at the Panama-Pacific exposition. Sharp was chosen from many possibilities for the coveted position.

Mr. Stackable makes it plain that he refused to resign because he wished to show on the record that he was removed for political reasons and that he would not admit misconduct or incompetency.

ASIA WAKING TO WORLD-POWERS SAYS G. S. EDDY

Noted Leader of Y. M. C. A.
Work says Far East on Threshold of Great Renaissance

That Asia is now in the grip of a remarkable revival along industrial and educational lines—one which is far greater than even the renaissance which swept Europe six centuries ago—and that the big Far Eastern territory will, within a few years, become America's keenest competitor and at the same time her most energetic customer, is the declaration made by G. S. Eddy, general secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association of all Asia. Mr. Eddy arrived in Honolulu in the Shinyo Maru this morning, on route to the Orient, in company with Mrs. Eddy and J. H. Fowler, his assistant. Mr. Eddy, now a world figure in Christian leadership, was graduated from Yale in 1891 in the class containing the noted group which went to foreign lands at that time, among them Horace Pitkin, martyred in China by the Boxers. After finishing his theological course in Union and Princeton, Mr. Eddy went to India on his own initiative in 1896, and has continued to work on that basis. After 16 years of work among the students of the Indian empire, he was called to be secretary for Asia by the international committee of the Young Men's Christian Association. Three years of service in this capacity among the young men, especially the government students of India, China, Korea, Japan and the Near East, have been characterized by the brilliancy, energy, judgment and devotion so singularly combined in this young Christian statesman.

China Has Broken With Past.

"China," remarked Mr. Eddy this morning, "is destined to become one of the great powers of the world."

Grand Jury Probes Auto Case.

The territorial grand jury, in session this afternoon, is considering the accident in which an 11-year-old Hawaiian girl, Lepeka Aieaakalu, was killed a week ago by an auto driven by Chauffeur Tom Quinn near Waipahu. Quinn was called before the grand jury today. This and another auto case, the D. R. Clement case, were expected to take up a large part of the afternoon. OAHU COMPANIES ARE HONORED

Coast Artillery Trophy Presented

Major-General Carter Congratulates Army's Best on Efficiency in Marksmanship

Eight companies of Coast Artillery, organized as a provisional regiment of two battalions, were paraded this morning in the executive grounds for an impressive ceremony. The Knox Coast Artillery trophy, awarded for the highest efficiency in target practice for the year, and open to the competition of the entire corps, was presented by Major-General Wm. H. Carter, department commander, to the 68th and 143rd companies, stationed at Fort Kamehameha, which last year led the army in service practice.

With the regiment in line of masses, General Carter's ringing words of praise and patriotism could be plainly heard by every man in ranks and at the conclusion of his talk the several hundred civilian spectators tried to make up by the spontaneity of their applause for the handclapping that would have come from the soldiers had military custom permitted.

Colonel W. C. Rafferty, commanding the Coast Defenses of Oahu, commanded the regiment, and after the ceremony of regimental parade, the troops passed in review before General Carter. The trees and shrubbery in front of the executive building made it extremely difficult to handle the command, but in spite of this handicap the coast gunners made a most creditable showing. About 700 men were in ranks, and as they swung by the reviewing point in column of platoons, they presented a fine appearance. Man for man the coast artillery gets bigger men than any other arm of the service, and this was noticeable this morning.

Praise from Gen. Carter.

"The target practice of today becomes the battle action of tomorrow," said General Carter. "I know it is gratifying to Governor Pinkham and the people of Hawaii to know that there are stationed at the mouth of Pearl Harbor two companies whose marksmanship is superior to all others in the American army. It is men of your type who have never failed to deliver what is expected of you, that has made possible the great development in gunnery of the last 20 years, both in the army and the navy of the United States. It is an added pleasure for me in presenting this trophy to the 68th and 143rd companies to know that not only the best marksmen in the coast artillery, but also the best in the field artillery, are stationed in Hawaii. For the 1st Field Artillery is also the winner of a national prize for 1913."

Before the presentation of the trophy, which is a massive bronze tablet, of fine design and workmanship, Captain F. W. Hinkle, adjutant, published the following general orders to the regiment:

"Headquarters Coast Defenses of Oahu."

KEWALO PROJECT HELD UP WHILE SECTION SUFFERS

Service of the papers in the injunction suit brought by Albert Reinecke against J. H. Fisher, as territorial auditor, and John W. Caldwell, as superintendent of public works, and the Lord-Young Engineering Company, to stop the Kewalo reclamation work has been made, and the papers returned to the circuit court.

In the meantime another suit for the same purpose, that was brought by J. Alfred Magoon, is in an interesting position before the supreme court.

A temporary restraining order was issued late Wednesday afternoon which holds good until 4 o'clock this afternoon, the petitioners being required to put up a $20,000 bond by that time if they would extend the duration of the order.

Up to noon this bond had not been put up, but it is expected to be submitted before 4 o'clock. The bond, if put up, will restrain the contractors from going ahead with the reclamation work at Kewalo while the case is pending before the supreme court.

It was reported on very good authority this morning that one of the large owners in the affected district, the Kanoa estate, would not join with Magoon in the further fight against the reclamation work, but was willing to allow the improvement to proceed. The reclamation will cost, it is estimated, about $8000, but if the Lord-Young Company is blocked and then finally allowed to go on, the parties now seeking the injunction must pay a large amount because of the expense

NEW PROMOTION COMMITTEE IN FIRST MEETING

The new Hawaii Promotion Committee, of which Emil A. Berndt is chairman, and which is composed of John Eminger, J. D. McInerney, Z. K. Myers and Ed. Towse, will meet for the first time at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the rooms of the former Chamber of Commerce, Stangenwald building. This committee, which is one of the several included in the makeup of the Chamber of Commerce of Honolulu, was appointed at a meeting of the directors of the chamber Wednesday afternoon.

The business of the meeting this afternoon will consist largely of matters of organization, which are necessary before the committee can enter into the work of the coming year. A new meeting place may be selected, and a definite conclusion will be reached regarding the day and time of meetings.

"I will have to admit that I received the surprise of my life when I was appointed chairman of the committee," said Mr. Berndt this morning. "Many of the present members are new at this sort of work, so we are going to proceed slowly at first in order that the work may be made to run smoothly. As yet, I have outlined no policies; that work will come later."

to which the contractors will be put. Hence the necessity for the $20,000 bond.

In the meantime the section is suffering for improvement, a large part under water and other parts declared to be very insanitary.

KAMEHAMEHA DAY IS VIVID WITH OLD PAGEANTRY

Days of Kings and Chieftains
Revived With Dignity and Impressiveness

A bit of old Hawaii, with all its color, pomp and ceremonies, was plucked from the past and left in Honolulu for a few short hours yesterday. In observation of the anniversary of the birthday of Kamehameha the Great, ancient history was enacted again with pageant and tableaux; kings and chieftains of old, with their retainers, kahili bearers and chanters, lived once more, as it were, and thousands of people of every nationality and from every walk of life came to look on and to admire. To the kamaaina the scenes were vivid and true; to the malihini they were a source of keen surprise and satisfaction. High honor was paid the Great King, and to the united Hawaiian societies is due the credit of having made the celebration by far the most successful, realistic and interesting of its kind ever held in Honolulu or in Hawaii.

Fully 15,000 persons of every creed and color, gay in holiday attire, watched the various events of the day from the time of the beginning of the parade in the morning until the last strains of music had died away at the dance in the National Guard Armory which brought the celebration to a

(Associated Press by Federal Wireless.)

TROON, Scotland, June 12.—Francis Quimet, the young American amateur, came to the front with a rush in the qualifying round of the British open golf championship, showing the form that won him the American title from Vardon and Bay last year. At the end of the second and last qualifying round he is leading all the amateurs, and tied for twelfth place with Tom Ball, the Belgian champion. The qualification totals are Ray 150, Champion, Taylor 150, Baird 151, Vardon 152, and Quimet 154. Today's cards were Baird 75, Ray 75, Quimet 77 and Vardon 78.
